MOVEMENT OF GOLD

Reasons Assigned for the Big Engagements in London Yesterday.

SOME ATTRIBUTE IT TO WHEAT FLURRY

Bankers Say It Is for Hoarding, and That the Financial Situation at Present Is Far from Alarming.

New York, Oct. 21 .- The large engagements of gold in London yesterday, amounting to $5,025,000, for shipment to the United States, is attributed in some quarters to the extraordinary rise in wheat, but bankers who were questioned said most of it was going into hoarding. They said that the financial situation was all right now, and that the treasury gold reserve was also safe. The gold engaged yesterday was for the following firms in this city: Lazard Freres $1,500,000, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. $1.000,000, Bank of British North America $500,000. Muller. Schall & Co. $275,000. L. Von Hoffmann Co. $500,000; W. H. Crossman & Bro. $500,000 and Kid-Peabody & Co., of Boston, $750,000. August Belmont & Co. received $21,000 in gold by the steamship Yucatan from Havana, and Lazard Freres received $330,000 in gold on the same ship. Yesterday afternoon it was announced that the Bank of France had stopped selling gold for export, which accounted for the large engagements at the Bank of England. The opinion was generally expressed, however, that the Bank of France would have to part with some more of its gold. Of the gold engaged in London by Kidder. Feabody & Co. of Boston, $100,000 is for the Third National bank of that city. The gold will go to Boston direct. Further engagements of gold are expected. The money market is firm. call money being 6 to 7 per cent., while some loans have been made as high as

BRYAN IN M'KINLEY'S DISTRICT. Some of His Over-enthusiastic Opponenta

Display Yellow Badges and Designs, Sandusky, O., Oct. 21.-A sortie into Major McKinley's old congressional district was the most important feature of Candidate Bryan's last day in Ohio, which ended with a speech at Sandusky last night, several hours behind the time called for by the programme. The loyalty of the republican candidate's former congressional district was manifested at several places by demonstrations to counteract enthusiasm for the democratic nominee. At Wellsville attempts to offset any influence Mr. Bryan's appearance and speech might have were particularly marked. Yellow badges, yellow hat bands, yellow streamers tied to brooms and yellow flags were numerous. Cheers for McKinley were heard frequently, and Mr. Bryan's address was interrupted so often that he finally turned on his annoyers and addressed some very vigorous remarks intended for their benefit. Outside of this incident the day was devoid of any new

APPEAL FOR M'KANE | WHEAT IS STILL

Justice Gaynor Makes a Touching Plea for His Pardon.

WASTS POLITICAL RIGHTS WITHHELD

Already Leveled To Nothing by Law and Order, Against Which He Presumed---Broken in Health and His Fortune Disappearing

New York, Oct. 21.—A morning paper says that it was discovered yesterday that justice William J. Gaynor of Brooklyn, who was the first to take steps against John Y. McKane, sent to Gov. Mortoz about Oct. I the following letter: "To the Governor-I beg to recommend the pardon of John Y. McKane, but without restoration to forfeited political rights. I do not think I have been moved to this mainly by the distressing appeals of himself and his wife and children to me, though I cannot say I have not been affected by them. There are other considerations. In the case of professional criminals, such as burglars, for instance, the state may well have the policy of confining them in prison permanently or as much as possible for the protection of life and property. But in the case of criminal offenses in respect of which the imprisonment is for punishment principally, as a warning to others, and in order to preserve the political and social order, the term of imprisonment should not be longer than is necessary to that end. It seems to me that that end has been attained in the case of McKane by imprisonment for now more than two years and six months. His fall and disgrace. coupled with almost any term of imprisonment, would have been at once woeful punishment to him and a salutory warning to others. The broken health of McKane is to me also a relevant consideration as well as the fact that the remnants of his private fortune are being dive ted from him by betrayal of trust, which has been or will be explained to you. While McKane's crimes and defiance of law have been great, his punishment has been 'crushing. Law and order, against which he presumed, have leveled him to nothing. I remain, respectfully, etc.,

"W. J. GAYNOR." McKane, it will be remembered. was political bos, at Gravesend, and was sentenced to six years' imprisonment for election irregularities and for defying an order of the supreme court.

MARKET FEVERISH AND EXCITED

Closing Prices at Chicago Yesterday the Highest Reached This Year-Bradstreet's Report, Duc To-day May Change the Situation.

New York, Oct. 21.—The excitement in wheat has considerably abated although there are no signs yet of a big break in prices. Plenty of noise greeted the crowd of spectators which filled the gallery of the produce exchange when the market opened this morning. Quotations, however, did not fluctuate with the same rapidity as they did yesterday, and they failed to make any new sensational record. Liverpool cable advices indicated that the bullish edge was off the grain market in that city, at least for the moment. Bradstreet's usual weekly statement of available stock which was due yesterday, but was delayed on account of tardy returns, will be issued to-day and may have the effect of checking the bull movement. December wheat closed yesterday at 85% against 84% Monday, and May 88% against 88% Monday. Local flour men said to-day that while flour quotations had been marked up following the advance in wheat, the advanced prices appeared to have shut out business to a great extent, with only a hand to mouth trade doing at present.

High Water Mark in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 21.-The wheat market continues feverish to-day and prices are up and down. The closing price yesterday was the highest reached this year. Indications early in the day gave no intimation whatever of the boom which was seen in the closing half hour. Some indifference abroad was disclosed by the cables and especially those from Liverpool. America looks to Europe for direction in the present instance, and when a decline at the place mentioned was reported the enthusiasm here underwent modification. Bradstreet's was expected to announce a big increase in the world's stocks, and on the prospect thereof a few were tempted to sell a little wheat short. When it was fearned that the report would not be made public during the day there was a change of front, no one caring to remain short over night. Then when sales of 300,000 bushels at New York to Lisbon for export were reported, together with heavy gold importation, the sentiment rapidly assumed a bullish appearance, and from that time until the close it was only a question of how high prices would go. Bersin, Paris and Antwerp all quoted advances corresponding with ours of Monday. Receipts in the northwest were neavy, at 1.537 cars against 1.433 Tuesday of last week, and 1.436 a year ago (hieago had 27; cars and inspected out 193000 bashels. Export continues amounted to 495,725. Decomper wheat opened 77% to 77%, sold between 77 , and 75 L. closing at 75 L. one cent higher than Monday. (ash wheat was pregular, closing firm at one cent advance. Rechipts at principal western points 1,100,000 bushels: shipments of 650 bushels, torn and outs are not affected to-day by the wmut exenemen'.

NEW TRIAL FOR M'LAUGHLIN. New York's Former Police Inspector Ma-Be Reinstated and Retired.

New York, Oct. 21.-The decision of the court of appeals yesterday in reversing the judgment of conviction in the case of former Inspector of Police McLaughlin, the court holding that the jury that convicted the inspector of extortion was biased and that improper evidence was admitted, it is believed will result in his reinstatement and restitution of back pay. Speaking of the matter, Police Commissioner Andrews said: "I don't know what we can do. It looks as if we shall have to reinstate the former inspector. Yet, as I understand, the reversal is based on the technical ground of error, and a retrial may be possible. Without having looked up the law, I should say he is like a man under indictment. When he applies for restoration to his position, the board will have to accede and then all we can do is to suspend him on full pay pending an inquiry as to the expediency of a retrial." It was stated positively by friends of McLaughlin today that he meant to retire as soon as his honor was clear and the stain of felony was removed from his character. They said he had repeatedly declared he would fight till he could once more put on his uniform and that he then would take it off with a

His Contentions Under the Veteran Act Sustained by the Court of Appeals.

New York, Oct. 21,-John J. Fallon, who was ordered yesterday by the court of appeals to be reinstated as warden of the Tombs prison, was suspended from duty on January 6, pending an investigation upon charges preferred by deputy warden Edward O'Shea. The charges alleged cruel and malicious treatment of the prisoners confined in the Tombs, an ungovernable temper, and conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline. Fallon was removed by the commissioner on the charges, but brought certiorari proceedings, and the appellate division of the supreme court handed down a decision reinstating him on June 29. Fallon's contentions were that under the veteran act he could not be removed without cause, and no cause had been proved. The court of appeals sustained this contention. Fallon will receive his salary for the time of his suspension.

London, Oct. 21.—Charles Matthews, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Castle of San Francisco, who were yesterday fully committed at the Great Marlborough street police court for trial at the Clerkenwell sessions on November 2, on the charge of shoplifting, and were released upon renewing their bail, $200,000, furnished by them when their hearing was adjourned last week, said this morning that his clients could not have witnesses necessary for their defense present by November 2 and that he would direct his efforts for an adjournment when the case was called. When Magistrate Newton announced that the prisoners' trial would be held at Clerkenwell sessions, Mr. Matthews asked that the defendants be committed for trial in the central criminal court, Old Bailey, instead of the ordinary sessions. His grounds for making this request, he said were that the anxiety of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Castle in San Francisco that they should receive the benefit of all available testimony in their favor was very great, and the committal of the prisoners for trial in the Old Bailey court would allow them time to come to England, bringing with them medical evidence of the mental irresponsibility of Mrs. Castle. Magistrate Newton said that he was unable to comply with the request, as he was acting under directions to send all cases of shoplifting to the sessions. Mrs. Castle, when arraigned yesterday and during the hearing, was almost hysterical and sobbed bitterly throughout the proceedings. Mr. Castle was calm and not at all nervous, but it could plainly be seen that he was laboring under deep mental strain. The testimony left no doubt of the guilt of Mrs. Castle. Sympathy is with Mr. Castle, however, as it is the belief that if he had knowledge of his wife's wrongdoings he kept the matter quiet to shield her and avoid scandal. Some there are, too, who believe that Mrs. Castle's mind is

A LEAP YEAR STORY.

"You ask my real opinion of you: story, Dexter, honor bright?" "Honest Injun; yes."

"Then, in a nutshell, excellent-except for your heroine. She's atrocious A wooden doll or stilts--dry as the lear that fell last year. Have you no sweetheart, man? Cannot you evolve anything at all from inner consciousness?"

"Would you have her like old Sallust's Fulvia, 'one who can crack a joke, sing and dance beyond what is expected of a good woman?"

"No, Dexter, I would have a fiesh and blood article you would be proud to own as sister or sweetheart yourself. Have you no personal experience into which you might dip your pen?"

"That's what's the matter. Love has never taken me in."

"Dexter, I pity you! But it's not too late. You are not over 40, are you?"
"Forty, indeed! I am barely turned 39. What are you thinking of? Forty.

indeed!" "No offense, I assure you. Who is that rosebud of a girl I see with your people so much? I was thinking of her. Dip your pen into her."

"Why, that is Daisy; my sister-inlaw's sister Daisy, fresh from convent. I never thought of Daisy."

But after his friend left, Dexter straightway began thinking it not half bad a scheme to substitute something young and girlish for his lady on stilts. Daisy was an unknown quantity to him, as with his mind upon other affairs he had never yet looked her square in the face. He had seen her tying flowers around the neck of a pet lamb and feeding some chickens and he could have seen her with ten-year-old Freddie wading in a creek; only he turned his head and would not look. He had concluded her to be utterly childish and irresponsible.

However, with self-interest as the governing motive, he proceeded to put on a fresh necktie; took a careful scrutiny of his middle-aged face and brushed the hair over the bald spot on his head, before presenting himself in his sister-in-law's drawing-room.

Enthroned in a wicker chair knotted with blue ribbons, sat the freshest, womanliest, busiest little person he had

Daisy, in a blue dress and ruffled apron with pockets, hemming a white ruffle. When Dexter walked straight toward her and scated himself by her side she gave such a surprised start that the spools went spinning over the floor. She blushed a rosy red blush of evident pleasure. Dexter didn't know they could really blush in these days like

"Oh, have you come at last?" she almost whispered.

"Come? Why, I've been in the house a week," he replied.

"Ah, but you've never seen me before. mean to notice me—and I was so afraid you never would."

Dexter almost blushed himself at this. He said: "I mean to see a great deal of you now, if you'll let me.'

"Oh, I'm perfectly delighted," said Daisy, holding out the prettiest white hand in the world. Dexter shook it, thimble and all. "Now we are to be great friends, aren't we? You know I couldn't make the first advances, could

"The very best," said Dexter, smiling, "and I want you to begin by telling me our ideas of this wicked world and the inhal-Stants thereof."

Daisy laughed and lifted her eyes to us; the they were, and bright. Then she changed color, slowly, and gracefully plaked up to the tempics, and an-

"The world! What do I know of the world? The sisters teach us that men are deceivers ever, and that there is a errible thing called love, which we must ot dare to think of. But what do I snow? We are no more than little inmeent babies in the convent. Tather Inurent and Brother Ned are all the men I have seen until--" with a radiant -mile-"now. I know you Mr. Dexter, and you are no deceiver, are you?"

Dexter's conscience gave a twinge, but ie also was delighted to be so nuticed, ind his eyes laughed shyly as he drew

"How could you know me so quickly?" he asked. "My sister Hetty has told me all about ou. That you are clever and fine and drivatric, and she says you can teach me all I want to know." "And what may that be?"

Daisy blushed again. She looked into ris wily face with a tender, thoughtful ight in her lin pid eyes. "I am dying to know about this thing hey call love," she said. "We are so gnorant in convent. We know only he name. There was a book called Trilby,' we hid under our beds, that hey say would have taught us a great leal. But Sister Angele found it, and they said she point it with fire that tlashed from her eyes. Mr. Dexter, w.h. you tell me what love is?"

"Presently; I want to hear you talk

Daisy flushed rosy red, and Dexter hooked the scissors over his thumbs. It was entrancing to see this beautiful bud unfolding before his very eyes.

She told him about the convent; how hey said their prayers and asked Heaven to protect them; how the dear sisters ignore such world-minded things as gladden the heart of women; but her own soul was filled with yearning for domestic tenderness, and she longed to be like real, everyday people and learn everything and help to do her part in the world; she was very fond of children; she clasped her hands in her earnestness and tears filled the blue depths of her eyes.

And Dexter, like an ancient war horse, hearing the sound of the trumpet, warmed up to the occasion.

He gave the rein to all the sentiment that surged in his mind. Was not such a chapter needed to soften his steel-cut story?

He harrowed his mind and raked his brain for tender, fanciful language to paint Dan Cupid. He got "Romeo and Juliet" and ranted as much as he could without peeping in the book.

"How beautiful!" eried Daisy. He got Tennyson and read until his voice grew hoarse, and Daisy still murmured: "Beautiful-oh, how beautiful!" She wanted to hear more about love.

Dexter made a bold resolve. He knew a little song that his sister had taught him ages ago-one only-and he had worked himself up to so wild and reckless a pitch that he went to the piano and thumped out some sort of accompaniment to:

"I love thee, I love thee! I swear by the stars above thee!" and sang six verses of it with a chorus each time.

Daisy sat in a trance and murmured: "Beautiful—oh, but you do make such beautiful music!"

Suddenly he looked at his watch and found that hours had been consumed in this pathos. He sprang up to go.

"Oh, thank you!" cried Daisy. "I will think over all the beautiful words you have said. I could never have dreamed it all."

"You dear little dimpled darling." thought Dexter, and he could scarcely refrain from saying it aloud.

Once at his desk, he tore down from her stilts his wooden heroine, while the fever was hot within him, while the fire burned.

"But what the dickens did she mean by so much blushing?" he continually asked himself. "And she was afraidafraid I'd never notice her. Poor little thing!'

He never wrote with such enthusiasm before. He even let in a verse of the song he had sung. "She says I sang it beautifully," he murinured, and hummed softly the re-

"But what the deuce does she blush about?" he asked himself over and striving to solve the mystery. "Mr. Dexter," she once told him, "I don't believe I forget a word you ever tell me. Oh, I am going to astonish you some day-see if I don't"-and she spread her pretty hands over her burning face.

Dexter "stepped about" as lively as a young boy. He took Daisy driving. and his friend, meeting him, a sly look passed between them.

But a letter came for Daisy; she was called home-all the way to Texasand she showed openly that it grieved her to the core.

"Just when I am doing so well," she pouted, "and so happy and content." Dexter really blushed himself-the first time in 15 years.

"There is something I will have to hurry up, Mr. Dexter: I have made up my mind to ask you to—I mean I want you to tell me-show me-exactly hove they act when they are truly in love. I have a secret reason-I-" When Dexter's tanned countenance showed color, Daisy's flamed scarlet. "Oh, have I said what I should not? I am sure I don't know. Please excuse my ignorance. But Dexter, declaring there was noth-

AN ORIGINAL JUDGE.

A Packed Jury Did Not Trouble Him and Conviction of a Thief Was East.

No more unique figure is to be found in the American judiciary than Judge Gaslin, of Nebraska, and many are the stories told of this interesting person-

A four per cent, a month movey-lender had, through the instrumentality of a small loan, secured about everything a homsteader possessed excepting his farm, but with all the payments the loan refused to grow less. Finally action was brought in court to enforce payment of the alleged balance by means of a judgment against the man's farm. A jury had been secured which under tood its business, and in spite of the instructions of Judge Gasl'n, which favored the defendant, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff. "Mr. Clerk." he said, "that verdict is set aside. It takes 13 men io steal a man's farm in this court." On another occasion a man who had drifted over into Nebraska from Coloredo, who was not familiar with the manner of administering justice on the Nebraska side of the border, appropriated a horse which he found hitched to a nost in front of a country store. The horse harrened to be the property of Judge Caslin. The thief was captured and later bound over to await trial in the district court. FOR PRESIDENT.

For the first time in the history of thic ountry an opportunity for women to publicly express their choice for president is offered. The method is unique and will result in showing on Nov. 4th just what effect the woman's vote will have on national cifairs.

All women over eighteen are entitled to one vote. The votes by states will be shown in the papers on every Wednesday and Saturday until Nov. 4th. Women are requested to read more than one side of the question and act upon their own judgment. Write the name of candidate on a postal card and write your own name and address clearly. also city and state. On the lower left hand corner give the name of a banker or grocer who knows you.

This precaution is to prevent flooding the mail with fictitious votes.

Names unknown to grocer or banker will be thrown out. Be very careful to write clearly and an acknowledgment of the receipt of each vote will be sent to the fair voter. Sea Gull and Sparrow.

A sea guil was recently seen to seize a sparrow in St. James' park, London, which it quickly took to the water. The bird then deliberately drowned the sparrow, dipping it in, over and over again, till the poor little body hung limply down, with every vestige of life fled, and then with one gulp it was swallowed, while a companion gull screamed and flapped its wings, probably wishing it had been equally lucky.—N. Democrats are called Anarchists because they refuse to accept the latter day doctrine that courts are intallible and their decisions too sacred for criticism. Yet no less a person than Reformer Parklimst, indignant at the reversal of the conviction of Inspector McLaughlinsays of the Court of Appeals, the highest judicial body in New York State, that if has been "conjuring up erudite devices that advertise its own profundity, humilrate the inferior courts, disappoint the public and canonize the criminal. Many Republican papers, too, echo the great "reformer's" sentiments. If it's anarchy to criticise the United States Supreme Court when it is divided against itself. and only reaches its conclusion after a wallbly judge has been convinced by neargument, it is worse than unarray to Cratersen manimous decision or a great State's highest court

The expenses of the State government under Republican rule show a most astonishing merease. In 1894, the last year of Goy, Hower's administration the total appropriations for the support or the State government were $15,125,-640. In 1895, Gov. Morton's first year, they were $18,966,846 and in 1896 $20,106,502, an increase or $4,980,862 over 1894. The Rames law, by divertmg money from localities into the State Treasury, provides for part of this incruse in the cost of the State, government, but the limit of induced taxation has been reached, and a Black is elected and the Republican policy of extravagance is continued, as it undoubtedly will be, money can be provided in no other way than by levying heavier direct taxes on the people who are already oppressed by all the burdens of taxation that they can or ought to be compelled to lear the free coinage of silver. He is also most emphatic in his denunciation of the reprehensible methods by which the beneficiaries of the single gold standard seek to coerce workingmen into voting for the perpetuation of a system that benefits the few at the expense of the many.

On this subject he says: "If the character of the single gold standard is to be judged by its influence in this campaign, it must be conceded that its only mission on earth is to make threats against industry, intimidate the working people, and demand for America the same laws and conditions on which rest the monarchies of the old world. A monetary sy tem that is too cowardly to stand before the world on its ments. but steals into the homes of the poor and demands the votes of the working people on threats of discharge; the monetary sytem that compels working people to lie to hold their jobs, and torces them to wear McKinley buttons whether they want to or not, and requires them to go on excursions to Canton, O., against their will, is in conflict with the spin of Republican government and too contemptible to command the support of a patriotic, liberty-loving people.

As Secretary Carlisle interprets the act of 1890, the treasury will redeem silver dollars and silver certificates in gold if he deems it necessary to maintain the parity between the metals. Thus far the government has redeemed treasury notes alone, but in order to maintain the reserve intact against the raiders, it has been compelled to issue $262,000,000 of bonds. Should the Secretary of the Treasury make up his mind that the preservation of the national honor required the redemption of silver certificates, he would multiply by thier the power of the raiders to deplete the reserve and the $262,000,000 increase in the national debt would be only the beginning of the augmentation that would be forced by the traffickers in gold and by those who make fortunes out or government bond issues. It McKinley is elected President he will have no alternative but to continue the rumous policy that is piling up the national debt. Conditions will not be changed and the Treasury will be at the mercy of those who, in the past, have profited by its necessities.

BEARS TREED BY CHILDREN.

Kept Watch Over the Big Game Until a Hunter Arrived With a Gun.

Archie and Nora Page, children of Elijah Page, of Westbrookville, on Saturday, went on the hills back of the village, to gather chestnuts. Toward evening their dog, which accompanied them, started up a bear and its cub.

The dog worried the animal, whose flight was impeded by its efforts to protect the cub. The children, unarmed. followed, and finally the bear and cub climbed a tree. Nora went over to the the Republican candidates, the Demohouse of Mr. Nation, leaving her brother and the dog to watch the bears, and wanted some one to accompany her and | crats supported the ticket nominated at shoot the animals.

still up in the tree, kept there by the barking of the dog. Night came and Archie and his sister decided to keep watch. The morning found them still guarding their prize. John Brown, a hunter, heard the dog backing, and found the bears treed by his neighbor's children. Two shots brought both animal's to the ground and their carcasses were taken to Westbrookville. The parents of the children were about to institute a searching party when they returned home with Brown and the game.

THE ACCIDENT AT GOSHEN.

The Coroner's Jury Makes an Investigation-The Raliway Company Exoner-

Coroner Decker held an inquest in the case of the two men killed at Goshen, Saturday night, at the St. Elmo Hotel, in Goshen, last night.

Engineer Lyman M. Lockwood, of the Mountain Express, whose engine struck the men, was the only witness of the aceident. He suid he was ten minutes late and was running tast. He had noticed that the signals were all right, and blewfor the station, and a moment later saw three men on the track. They were only ten or twelve reet ahead, and the next instant he saw their bodies in the air. There was no time to sound a warning. Frieman Suliivan was working at his fires at the time. Dr. Conduct testified to the nature of the men's injuries, and said death had been instantaneous. The statement of the unimed man at Orange Larm was read, as was also, the telegram of Cher Graul, of Paterson, giving the names of the dead men. The verdict was an accordance with the facts, and no blame was attached to the railway company or its employes.

THE VOTE OF FLORIDA.

From the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union. The Republicans have bad hopes of carrying Florida for McKinley. In the last State election the Democrats have polled more than three votes to their one. This is a sample of some of the wild Republican claims, and it shows how ridiculous they are. If one-third of the Democrats in November voted for cratic candidate would still carry the State. If forty-nine per cent. of the Demo-Indianapolis, the electors who will vote The family evidently put no credence for the ticket nominated at Chicago in her story, and her request was un- would still be chosen. Expressed in numbers, if 8,000 Democrats voted the Re publican ticket, the Democratic ticket would still be-elected. If 12,000 Demo erats voted for a third ticket, the electors who will support the Chicago ticket would still be chosen.

OBITUARY.

John H. Brake.

John H. Drake, of this city, died suddenly, in Philadelohia, at nine o'clock, last night. Mr. Drake had been a sufferer for several years, from kidney and heart troubles, but his condition was not considered at all alarming. Late last evening, a telegram from one of his partners, J. W. Wainwright, was received by Mrs. Drake, announcing his serious illness. Mrs. Drake accompanied by her daughters, Miss Nellie and Mrs. T. K. DeWitt, and Mr. Dewitt, started on Erie train 12, at 4:30 o'clock, this morning, for his bedside. At eight o'clock, W. F. O'Neill, Esq., received another telegram announcing Mr. Drake's Deceased was a son of Jesse Drake, a former well-known millwright of Sullivan county, who died in 1888. He was born in the town of Fallsburghabout fifty-five years ago. He was educated in the common schools of Sullivan county, and spent several months in a commercial college in Binghamton, N. Y. Although brought up on a farm Mr. Drake, in early life, evinced a natural bent for mechanics, and acquired some knowledge of the carpenter's trade. He engaged in the mercantile business at Wurtsboro and Brownville, now Havea, Sullivan county, with the late Hon, Harvey R. Mo ris, but soon tired of the petty cares of this business and secured employment with the Watson Bridge Company, of Paterson, N J., where he soon rose to the position of superintendent, which he held for several years, or until the formation, in 1880, of the firm of Jones. Drake & Co., the members of which were N. F. Jones, J. H. Drake and W. D. Stratton.

Mr. Jones retired in 1885 and the firm be came brake & Stratton, and was so known until 1890 when The Drake & Stratton Company was formed, the principal stockholders of which were John H. Drake, President, and W. D. Stratton, of this city, J. W. Wainweight and James Doig, of Pittsburg, Pa., John O'Connor, of Oswego, N. Y., E. J. Kelley, John B. McDonald and Pierre W. The Drake & Stratton Company has become known all over the United States as one of the largest and most successful firms of contractors in the country. The company does most of the beavy work of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. and has built a numb r of railroads throughout the country. Its largest enterprise, however, is the construction of the Jerome Park reservoir, the contract price for which is over $5,000,000.

Among the earlier contracts success fully carried out by the firm were the construction of the Wallkill Valley Railroad bridge at Rosendale; several bridges across the Harlem River in New York the foundation for the Statue of Liberty on Bedloe's Island: the Erie's Bergen County Short Cut Railroad; the Pittsburgh, McKeesport and Youghiogheny Railroad and the McKeesport and Belle Vernon Railroad. The company built and owned the latter road and sold it to the Pennsylvania Company. One of the most noted contracts was the construction of the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge. at Johnstown, to replace the one destroyed by the flood.

The company owns a charter and is engaged in building a road from ('harleston. West Virginia, to the coal regions in the mountains, a distance of 100 miles. 30 of which are already completed and in operation.

It is the principal stockholder in the Akron and Cuyaboga Falls Railroad and the Columbus, Ga., Electric Railroad.

The company recently disposed of a large railroad contract on the Island of St. Domingo, to the St. Domingo Improvenient Company.

The above concracts are but a very few of the many enterprises in which the firm has engaged, the successful fulfillment of which has won for it an enviable reputation in railroad and contracting circles. Mr. Drake and his partner. Mr. Stratton, became residents of this city in 1888. erly, at the corner of Wisner and Grand | across country. avenues, and the latter an adjoining property from Captain Lewis S. Wisner. Both gentlemen soon became known to our citizens through their strong public spirit, and after a short residence here Mr. Drake was elected an alderman from the First ward, on the Democratic

Mr. Drake was a liberal contributor to many local enterprises, and was one or the largest stock holders in the Orange County Trust and Safe Deposit Company, of which he was also a director,

Mr. Drake was married Dec. 14, 4862. to Miss Fannie M. O'Neill, or Tho apsonville, Sullivan county, who with three children survive him. They are: Belle, wife of T. K. DeWitt, of this city, Arthur S , of Philadelphia, and Miss Nellie, at home. He is also survived by two brothers, W. Samuel Drake, of Philadelphia, and Mott Drake, of Cleveland, Obio; also by one sister, Mrs. Gardiner, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Drake's businessengagements made it necessary for him to spend much of his time away from Middletown, so that his acquaintance here was not extensive, but all who knew him here or elsewhere were drawn to him by his many manly qualities. Beneath a somewhat bluff exterior beat a warm and kindly heart. He was loyal in his friendships, and to those whom he gave a place as friends be was a friend indeed. He was one of the most generous of men, and gave with an open hand to every worthy cause. He was gited with a remarkably keen business instinct. His mind readily gra-ped the details of even the largest enterprises, and his execntive ability helped carry the large cona successful conclusion. He was devoted to his family, and was the kindest and most indulgent of husbands and fathers. His death is a public loss.

Capt. Charles Kelso.

Capt. Charles Kelso, one of the best known citizens of Circleville, and who was also well known beyond the boundaries of his own neighborhood, died quite suddenly at 5 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, of heart trouble. He was about seventy years old. He had been in failing health for some time, but was about as usual until yesterday morning when he took to his bed.

Captain Kel-o, as he was known to all ds triends, earned bis title as captain of the 91st regiment of the New York State nilitia, Col. Dusenberry's regiment.

Captain Kelso was many years ago an employe of the Erie. This was in the old days when wood burning engines were used, and Capt. Kelso's duty was to keep wood enough in the nurnace to furnish the necessary steam. He was foreman of the Circleville creamery while it was operated by Mr. Seaman, who failed about a year ago.

His wife died five or six years ago, and since then he has resided with his two sisters, who with two sons survive. The sons are Charles and Ezra, both of whom are stationary engineers and reside in Jersey City. Another son, James, a locomotive engineer, was killed in a wreck on the New England road a few years up his mind he would as soon marry her as not-in fact, rather. On no account could be wound her susceptible little tender heart. Guileless little creature! In fact, he owed her a great deal for brightening his story—a serial, too—beyond all belief. And how might she not brighten his life!

So with beating heart he entered the earlor, ready for any emergency.

Daisy was there. "I have been waiting," she cried. "I have braced up my courage to make the avowai.'

Her hands were behind her and her lovely face all aglow. "I wish you would help me out. You must suspect what the secret is. Come, now; don't you? Don't make it so hard for me to say the words, Mr. Dexter."

Dexter dropped upon a sofa, utterly overcome with blissful anticipation, in a kind of tranced calm.

"You are so clever, Mr. Dexter, you may have guessed-"

"Daisy, darling." he murmured, drawing her gently to his side, "I have guessed-I thought so from the very first."

"Ah, you clever dear!" she cried, joyfully; "and you have given me every encouragement, haven't you? And in so many delicate ways."

"That I have, dearest; but don't be so shy. Come out and say the words. I long to hear them from those innocent Daisy looked up and she looked down "Come, darling," murmured Dexter; "don't keep me in suspense. You have every right to speak out. Consider the year-leap, you know; and the new woman and all that. I'll be sure to say yes to everything." What on earth do you mean?" cried

Daisy, drawing herself a little aloof. She kept her two hands clasping something tightly behind her back. "You shy little mouse!" whispered

Dexter, reaching for them. "There! you have it!" and she dropped into his hands a thick manuscript. "I have written a love story, Mr. Dexter, and have worked you in as my bero. Dexter fell back limp and speechless and she rattled on: "I worked you in from the point of your shoe to the crown of your dear old head. Though, of course, I covered that hald place with nice brown hair and smoothed out your wrinkles and made you look as you must have done 20 years ago."

"Oh. you did?" murmured Dexter, feebly.

"Was it wrong?" she cried, in consternation. "I thought it would make you feel young again. I thought you would be pleased."

"Daisy," uttered Dexter, hoarsely "why did you blush every time I came near you?"

"To make you notice me. Is it wrong to like to be noticed?" "Why did you draw me on to tell you of love, love, love?" "I wanted to know; and Sister Hetty said I might talk to you like a dear, sweet-old grandfather. Oh oh, have I hurt your precious feelings?" and Daisy fairly blubbered.

Some months later Dexter met his friend, who greeted him warmly and congcatulated him on the success of his serial story.

"It is a howling success," he said, "paricularly the rosebud of a girl."

Dextern is looking away at a swallow in the air.

RAISING LARGE TREES.

Simple Practice Successfully Used in Philadelphia. In the vicinity of Philadelphia they have a fashion of lifting large trees v here the grade has been raised that does not seem to be in practice elsewhere. Two ropes are attached to the top of the tree so that each can be drawn in different directions. A trench. is dug around the base of the tree, the earele being as wide as mit ecm judicoms. When dug to the delightestred the earth is forked away from the ball on one sale, and a block set under the roots as a sort of interum. The rope on that side is drawn over the block, and the result is the lifting up of the mass of roots on the opposite side. A little earth is then placed under these elesated roots, and the opposite rope drawn to that side. This lifts the roots over the block and more earth is placed there. The tree by the aid of the opposite ropes is then drawn backward and forward, more earth being placed at each turn. In a very short time the tree may be elevated as many feet as may be desired, standing on the summit of a firm mound of earth. Trees 25 to 50 feet high, with trunks 12 to 18 inches in thickness, have been lifted in this way with very little check to future growth.

That it isn't enough merely to save money Slowiv and laborously adding one dollar to another amounts to very little in itself. Four money must grow to count for much. Money grows most when invested in real estate. The fact is as plain as it is that twice two make four. It's just as plain, too, that property in Middletown is a gilt edged investment. This town isn't standing still Middletown is growing, and real estate values are certain to steadily advance on that account. We have some very choice properties on our books, and those investing now are sure money makers.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

What Happened to Him One Night Down in a Deep Cellar. "I'm fond of lobsters," said the retired burglar, "but I like 'em best cooked. And, speaking of 'em cooked, the best way to eat lobsters is stewed. You take good, lively, fresh lobsters and boil 'em, and then you pick 'em out and cut 'em up, not too fine, and warm 'em over; putting in a little water to make a sort of gravy, and a little bit of butter and a little pepper, and some salt. unless you put in salt enough when you boiled 'em, and maybe just a little touch of vinegar, though some folks don't like any vinegar in 'em at all. Then you serve 'em hot. I like to spread a slice of bread and put that on my plate and ludle the lobster out on that. You may think there's better ways of eating lobsters; but when I have stewed lobsters for breakfast I forget I'm poor. But what I set out to tell you about was a live lobster.

"I dropped down one night through a window that I had opened into a deep cellar. The window was narrow and high up. I guess it must have been six or seven feet from the cellar bottom to the lower edge of it. Of course, a man can't walk up a stone wall like that very well, and so before going upstairs fixed a way of getting out easy, in case I should want to go in a hurry, as, of course, might happen. I moved a couple of boxes un under the window, one on top of the other, making a sort of steps. When I reached down to pick up my bag again I didn't strike it at first, and as I was feeling along for it something grabbed my hand, nipped it sharp and hard and hung on. I was startled, sure, but I realized in an instant that it was a lobster. You know some folks when they ain't going to cook the lobsters till morning put 'em out on the grass over night, or maybe down on the cellar bottom, where they'll keep cool and in good condition, and I'd run against a lobster put down in the cellar. "When I stood up the lobster was still hanging on. I threw out my hand, natural enough, I suppose, with an idea of throwing the lobster off, but instead of that I banged him against the big zinc cylinder around the furnace. It sounded like hittin' a big iron drum with a club. That startled me, too, and when I stepped back to get away from the furnace I fell over into the coal bin. There was a narrow opening in the side of the bin where they took down one board at a time as the coal got lower there, until they'd got down to just one board at the bottom, and I'd stumbled over that and fell backward on the coal. The lobster was still hanging on. I thought I made noise enough clattering against the board and folling on the conl. but the minute I struck the coal I started a coal slide. From where the heards had been taken out the coal sloped up high against the side of the cellar; my falling on the foot of it started the whole face of the slope moving. It made more noise than a load of coal dumping on the sidewalk.

"Stepping out of the coal bin, I knocked down the coal shovel leaning against it just outside, and the big furnace poker. Noise? Humph! And all this time the lobster was still hanging on-you see, it takes me some little time to tell you about it all, but it took little time for it all to happ Here's a Middletown citizen that did it. Mrs. E. Dormans lives at No. 12 Corlage St., and she gives her testimony as follows: "It was only a backache at first, then severe acute pains. Urmary difficulty followed causing me to rise trequently during the night and to scald when urinating. A cold or overwork increased the pain. Sometimes my physicians ordered me to go to bed; at other times backache compelled me to and kept me there for three or four days. I have had no less than four physicians prescribe for me. One said it was womb trouble, another said female complaint and still another kidney disorder. It did not make much difference, what they pronounced the cause to be, all of them failed to cure me. I with very little faith in their efficacy obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at J. E. Mills' drug store. If I was sure that I would have no return of my trouble I could say I am radically cured for I have not a symptom of my own trouble but I have so often been disappointed by doctors' medicines that I have lost faith and confidence in any remedy. I have stopped taking Doan's Kidney Pills for I had no needo ir them. The pain has gone and I am improved in general health

To Kill Thistles

It is not necessary to kill all the seeds of the thistles in order to exterminate these undesirable weeds. You can so cultivate the ground that they will not thrive; and at last will disappear altogether. It might be better to kill the seeds, but we cannot do it. It would be the wisest course to destroy all the germs, or seeds, of consumption, could we do so. But this cannot be done. So we must keep the tissues of the lungs, the soil, in such a condition that the germs will not thrive the

THE BIG OFFICIAL BALLOT.

Middletown's Ballot will be Larger than Those Used in the Country Towns-A Slow Canvass of the City's Vote Certain

The blanket ballot to be voted in this State, this year, will be 191/2 inches wide. In most of the counties it will be twentysix inches long, but in Middletown and other cities where local officers are to be under the mission hall. chosen several inches will have to be added to the ballot's length.

The work of canvassing the vote in this city will be anything but an easy task. There will be so many names on the ballot, and there is likely to be so much splitting of tickets that it will be several hours after the closing of the polls before the canvass can be completed and we are likely to know the general result before we know exactly how Middletown has voted.

In Newburgh, last year, a city ticket was voted of about the some length as that in this city this year and it was long after midnight before the canvass was sufficiently completed for even an approximate estimate of the city's vote to be

THE STUDIOUS GIRL.

An Interesting Letter From Young Ladies' College.

Race Between the Sexes for Education, Health Impaired by Incessant Study.

The race between the sexes for education is to-day very close.

Ambitious girls work incessantly over their studies, and are often brought to a halt, through having sacrificed the physical to the mental. Then begin those ailments that must be removed at once, or they will produce constant suffering. Headache, dizziness, faintslight vertigo,
